

Snakebusters™... THE CORPORATE SNAKE SHOW THAT WILL IMPROVE STAFF PRODUCTIVITY

Would your company employ someone who's deaf?
Would an employee without arms or legs be able to work productively at your company?
Or would someone with no arms, no legs, who is totally deaf and nearly blind be able to rise to the top of the company?
Well it's happened in the animal kingdom.

In Melbourne's bush and elsewhere the snakes are king and they are all this.

All other animals fear them and they have good reason to.

Snakes have obvious limitations, but their body plan enables them to innovate and utilize what's available to them to be one of the most successful animals on earth.

So successful in fact that they live all over the world and in spite of human persecution, very few species are under risk.

Even here in Melbourne, all seven indigenous species are alive and well, including in the leafy suburbs of Kew, Brighton and so on.

In fact Kew has more snakes than most other suburbs!

Forget the yuppies, it's the Tiger Snakes who really call Kew, Balwyn and Ivanhoe home.

Most companies have given their staff the American style motivational lectures and put frankly they are bit tired and dated.

Snakebusters offers a new look at innovation and problem solving for companies.

Recently developed is a hugely popular interactive presentation where staff get to see and touch live snakes and see how they have tackled their own problems in terms of surviving in the wild.

Their own survival tactics can be transposed directly to the corporate world, especially in terms of sales teams and others who have to tackle people outside of their own company.

After all, snakes do this as well and like good sales people, they tend to get what they want.

Snakebusters don't charge like the American style speakers, but you get a lot more bang (or snake) for your buck.

Besides seeing snakes and lizards close up, like you have probably never seen before, a snakebusters show may lead your staff to new productive heights.

And unlike other speakers who may put your staff to sleep, one thing is a certainty ... Raymond Hoser and his snakebusters team will have the undivided attention of your staff for as long as his presentation runs.

Typically this is about an hour, but time may vary depending on the audience and what's requested.

Raymond Hoser's own experiences span wide areas of the corporate sector and hence his talks can be tailored to fit the audience and their own commercial objectives.

A Snakebusters presentation really may make a difference to your company's bottom line!

So how does the presentation run?

While for agricultural shows and expos we tend to do the famous snakes in a pit set up, for corporate gatherings we tend to do things differently. Some of our presentations are out of normal working hours so that all relevant staff can attend and be in a more relaxed mood.

Typically we go to the company's own premises, snakes and all, and Raymond does his presentation from a stage, front of the room, or some other fairly "close up" situation.

Raymond will quickly show the various kinds, how to tell them apart and all the latest advice in terms of where they live, avoiding them, snakebite and so on, before getting to the nitty gritty of the talk.

This is where he shows how snakes deal with the daily problems that beset their existence in terms of finding warmth, food and that ever important commodity, sex!

Put another way, nothing beats a Snakebusters show.

Safety?

People want to see the "dangerous" snakes. But, in this age of public liability risks, OH and S, and insurance headaches, many employers may shun such a show. However, Snakebusters offer the unique alternative of using "venomoid" snakes if requested to do so and as a trend we'll do this anyway because frankly, no one (including other snake experts) can tell the difference!

By the way, "venomoid snakes" are ones that have had their venom glands surgically removed. The snakes look and act exactly the same as the "normal (deadly) ones" and unless you can open the snake's mouth, hold it open, get hold of a magnifying glass and know what to look for, then you'd never know the difference.

But, these snakes are harmless.

Hence, there's ABSOLUTELY NO RISK to the handler or the viewers, which is one reason why it's possible to get up close in complete safety.

This also gets over the hurdle of when a company wants to bring in a "deadly snake talk", but doesn't want the "risks". Snakebusters is the only "hands on" snake education outfit in Australia with venomoid snakes and there are many other unique features, services and extras, that make Snakebusters the snake presenters of choice.
